Munich • London • New York

All over the world there are large and small museums ...

... with large and small paintings. Even people of the Stone Age made pictures on the walls of caves. Ever since then artists have used paint to express how they see the world. All of these pictures together couldn't fit into even the largest book, of course, but in this art coloring book you can find fourteen especially important artists from different times.

Leonardo da Vinci

Claude Monet

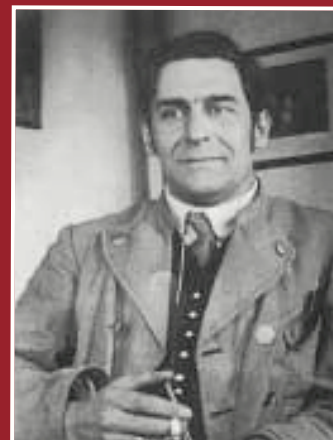

Have fun on this colorful voyage of discovery through the history of painting!

Albrecht Dürer

Vincent van Gogh

Franz Marc

Paul Klee with his wife Lily and their cat Bimbo

Jan van Eyck (1390–1441) was long called the “king among painters” because he was able to paint so true to nature. The fabrics in his paintings looked like they were real. These two look very serious for a bride and bridegroom ...

Would you like to draw or paint a few guests and gifts in the room?
Or some playful dogs instead?

Leonardo da Vinci (1452–1519) was a painter, architect, sculptor, engineer, scientist, and mechanic. And he also just happened to paint one of the most famous pictures in the whole world: the Mona Lisa.

But isn't this lady with the ermine also beautiful?

Is this a flying machine or a citrus juicer? Here's some space for you to invent your own flying machine.

Albrecht Dürer (1471–1528) was not only very talented at drawing but also had good business sense: he started up a press and printed many of his artworks in large numbers as woodcuts or engravings, and his pictures became known throughout all of Europe. Would you like to draw or paint a printing shop for him? Or maybe his easel instead?

Did Albrecht Dürer believe in the Easter bunny?
Hide a couple of colored eggs for him!

1502

Raphael (1483 – 1520) was not able to find perfect beauty anywhere in nature. So he looked for it in heaven and painted divine images of the Madonna and angels. Do these two look familiar?
