

Coloring Book

Hieronimus Bosch

Full of imagination and mystery, the pictures of Netherlandish painter Hieronimus Bosch have never ceased to fascinate their viewers. His given name was in fact Jheronimus van Aken, but he later named himself after his hometown, where he was born around 1450. His father, grandfather, and even great-grandfather had been painters before him and he chose the same trade they had followed.

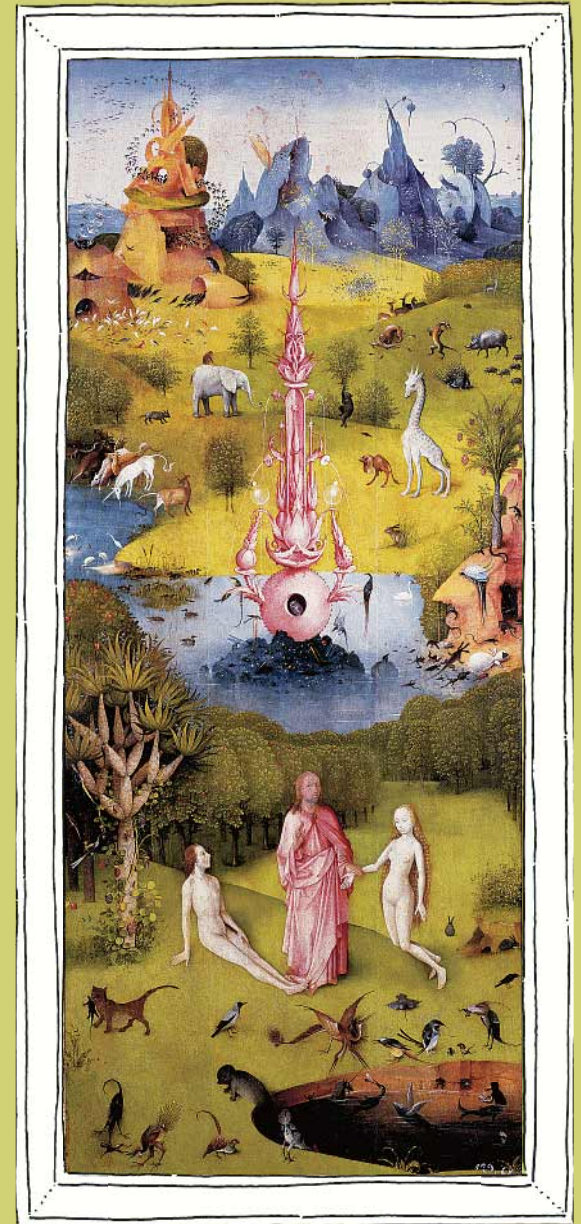

This portrait shows the artist Bosch, but it was painted long after his death.

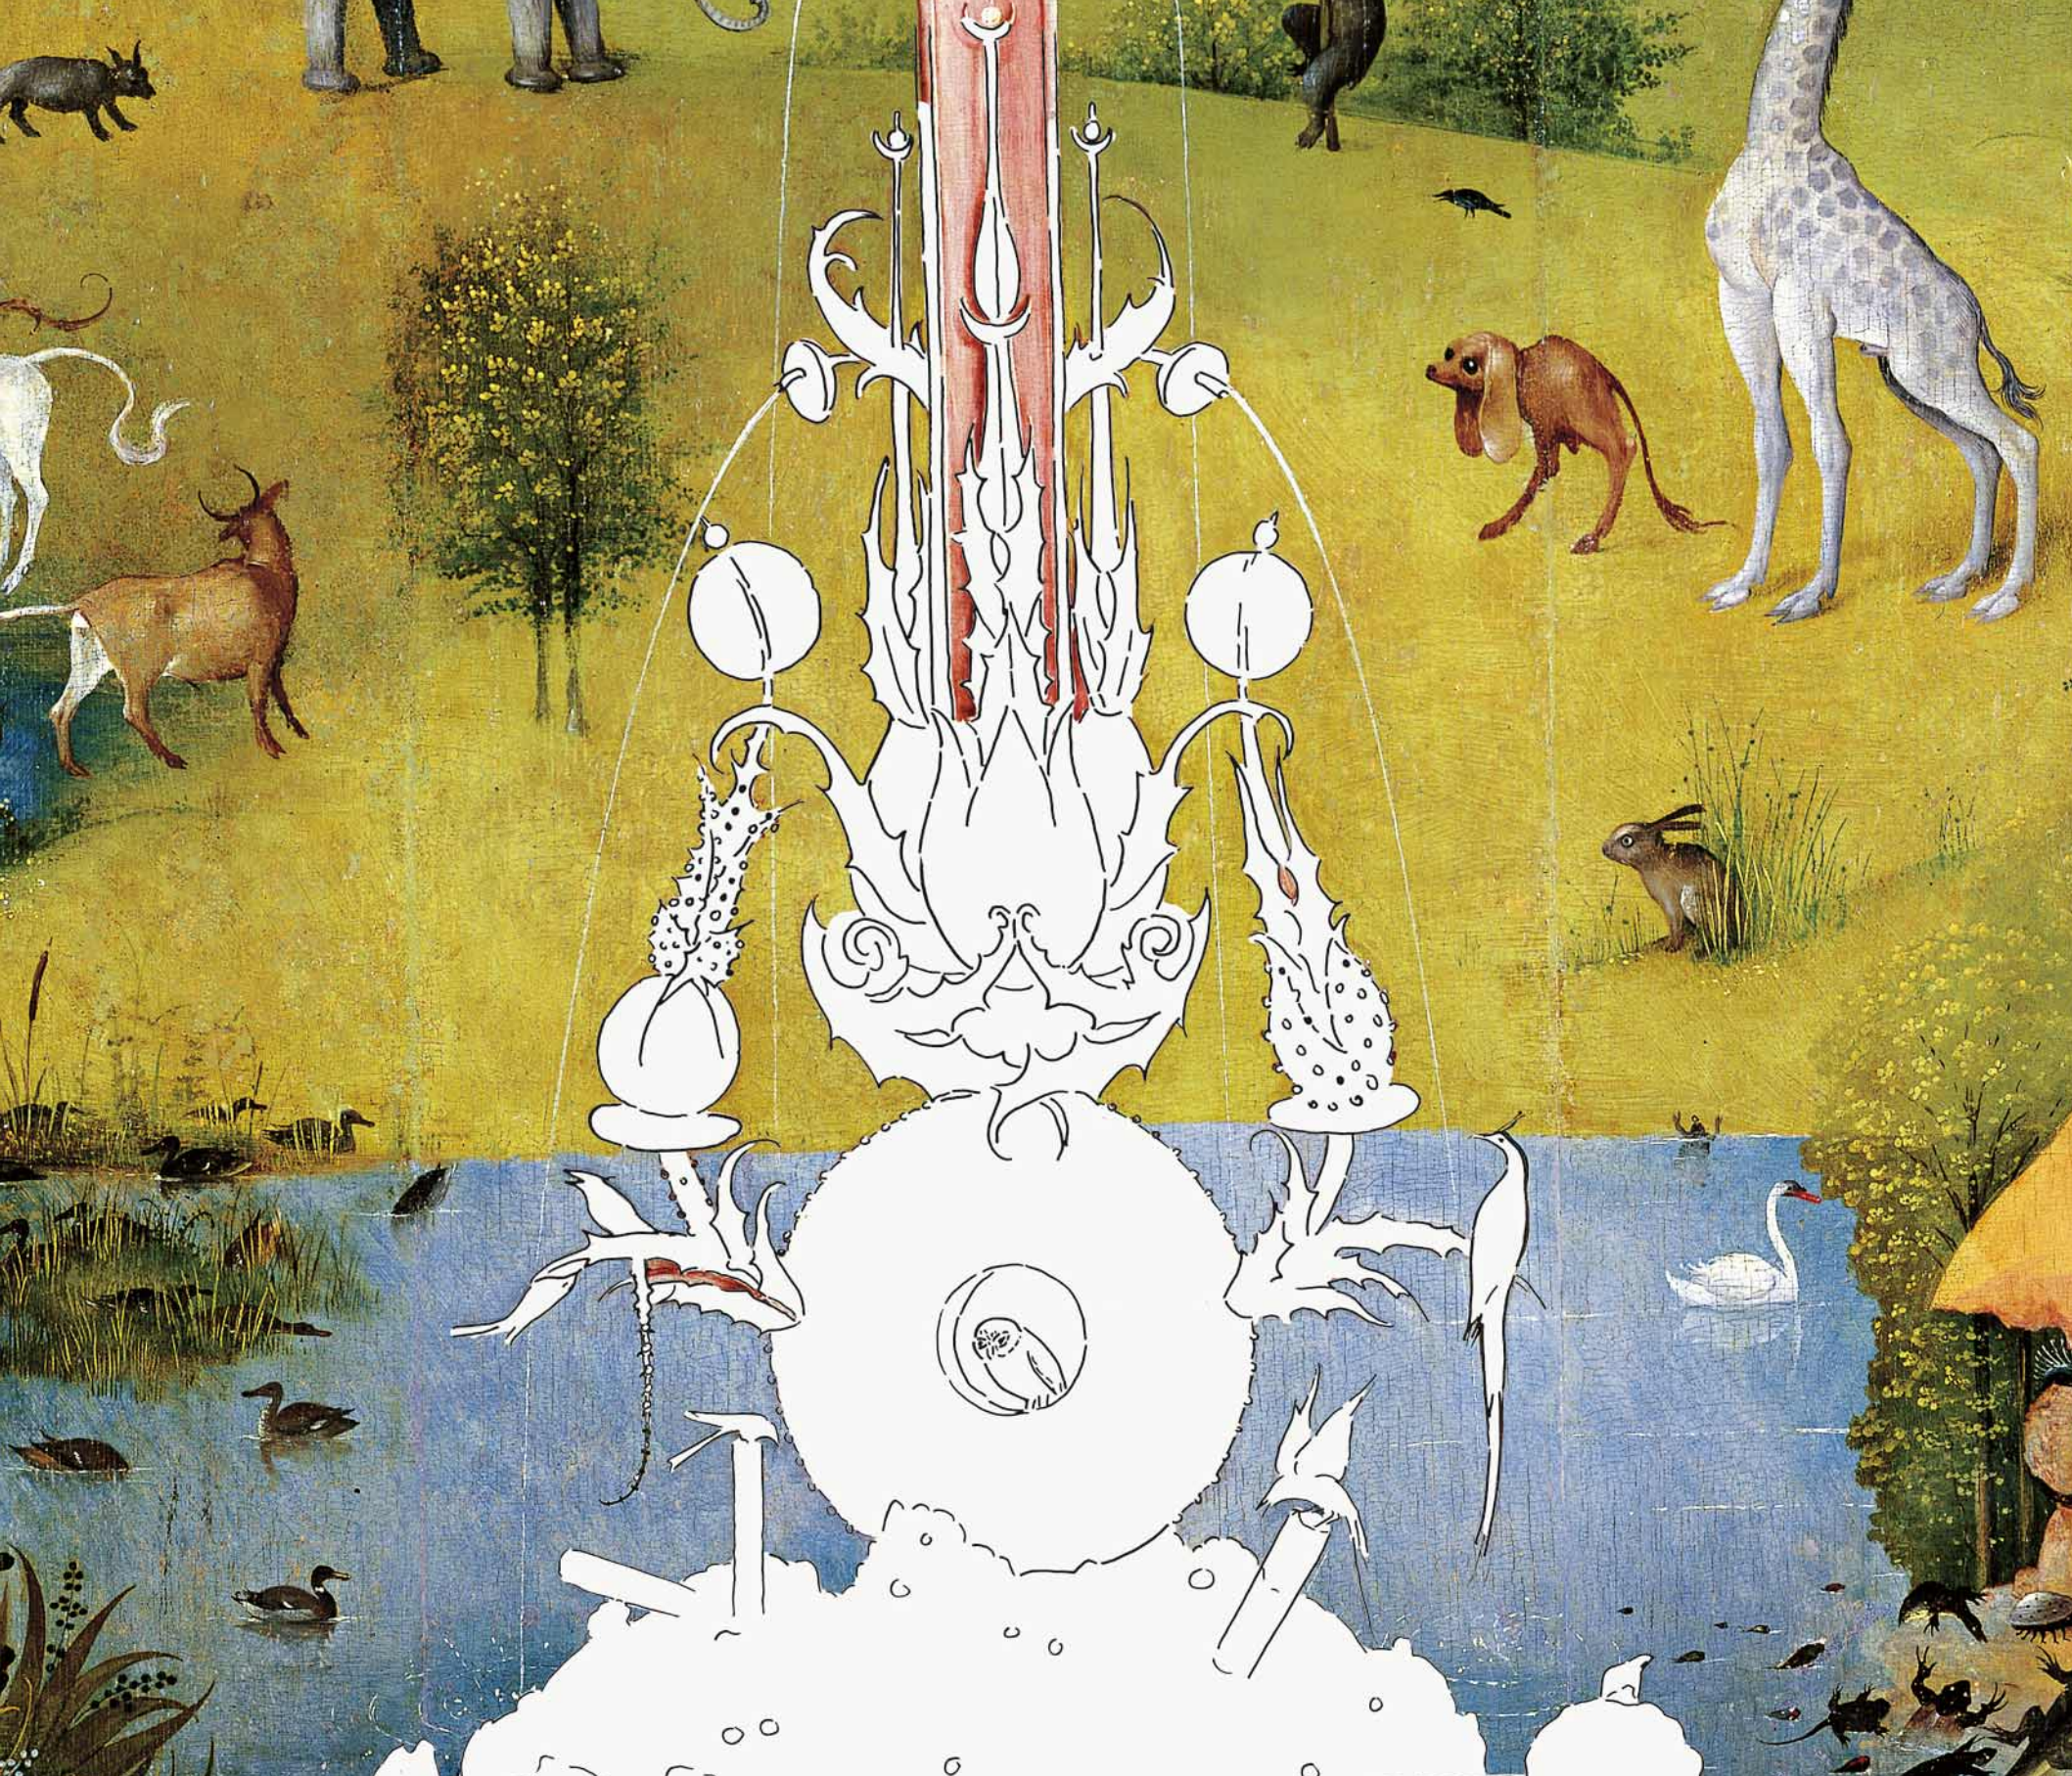

Hieronimus Bosch became world-famous and enjoyed great renown. Powerful rulers bought his works and commissioned paintings from him.

No one had ever seen anything like his pictures before! His mysterious works are filled with strange figures, exotic animals from distant lands, fabulous beings, giant fruits, brightly colored birds, bizarre forms, fountains, and towers.

This book contains many details of the work for you to color in and add to. Use your favorite colors and make the pictures however you like!

The Garden of Earthly Delights, left wing: Paradise, c. 1480–1490,
Madrid, Museo del Prado

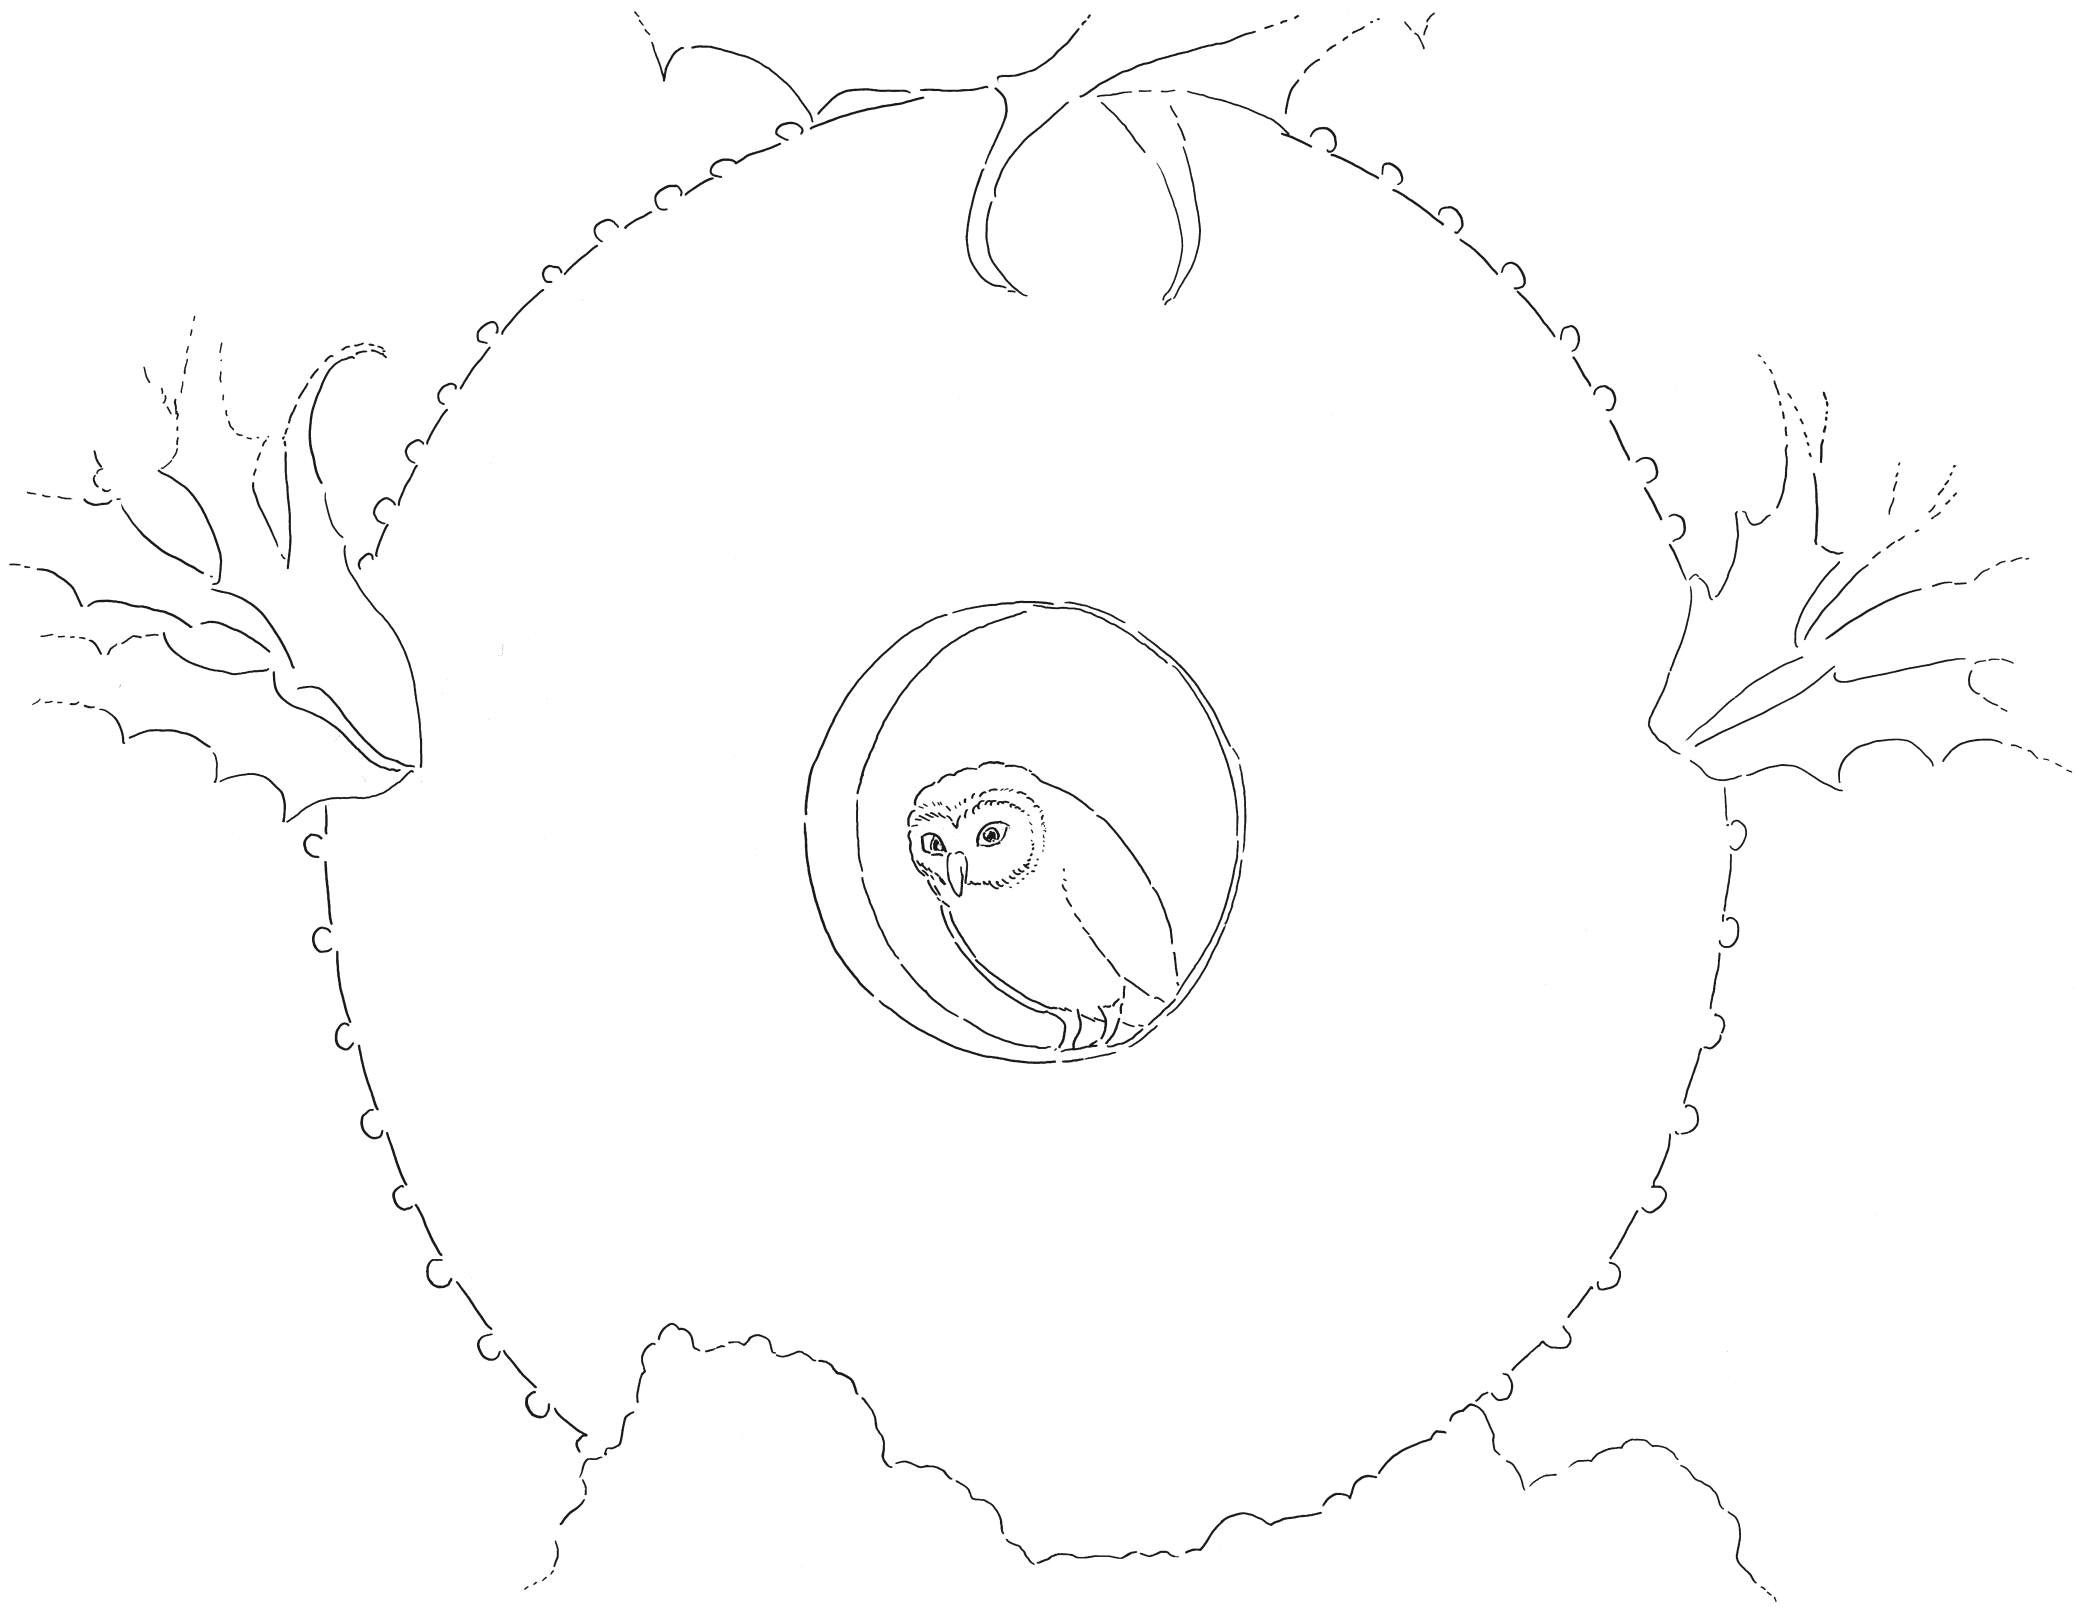

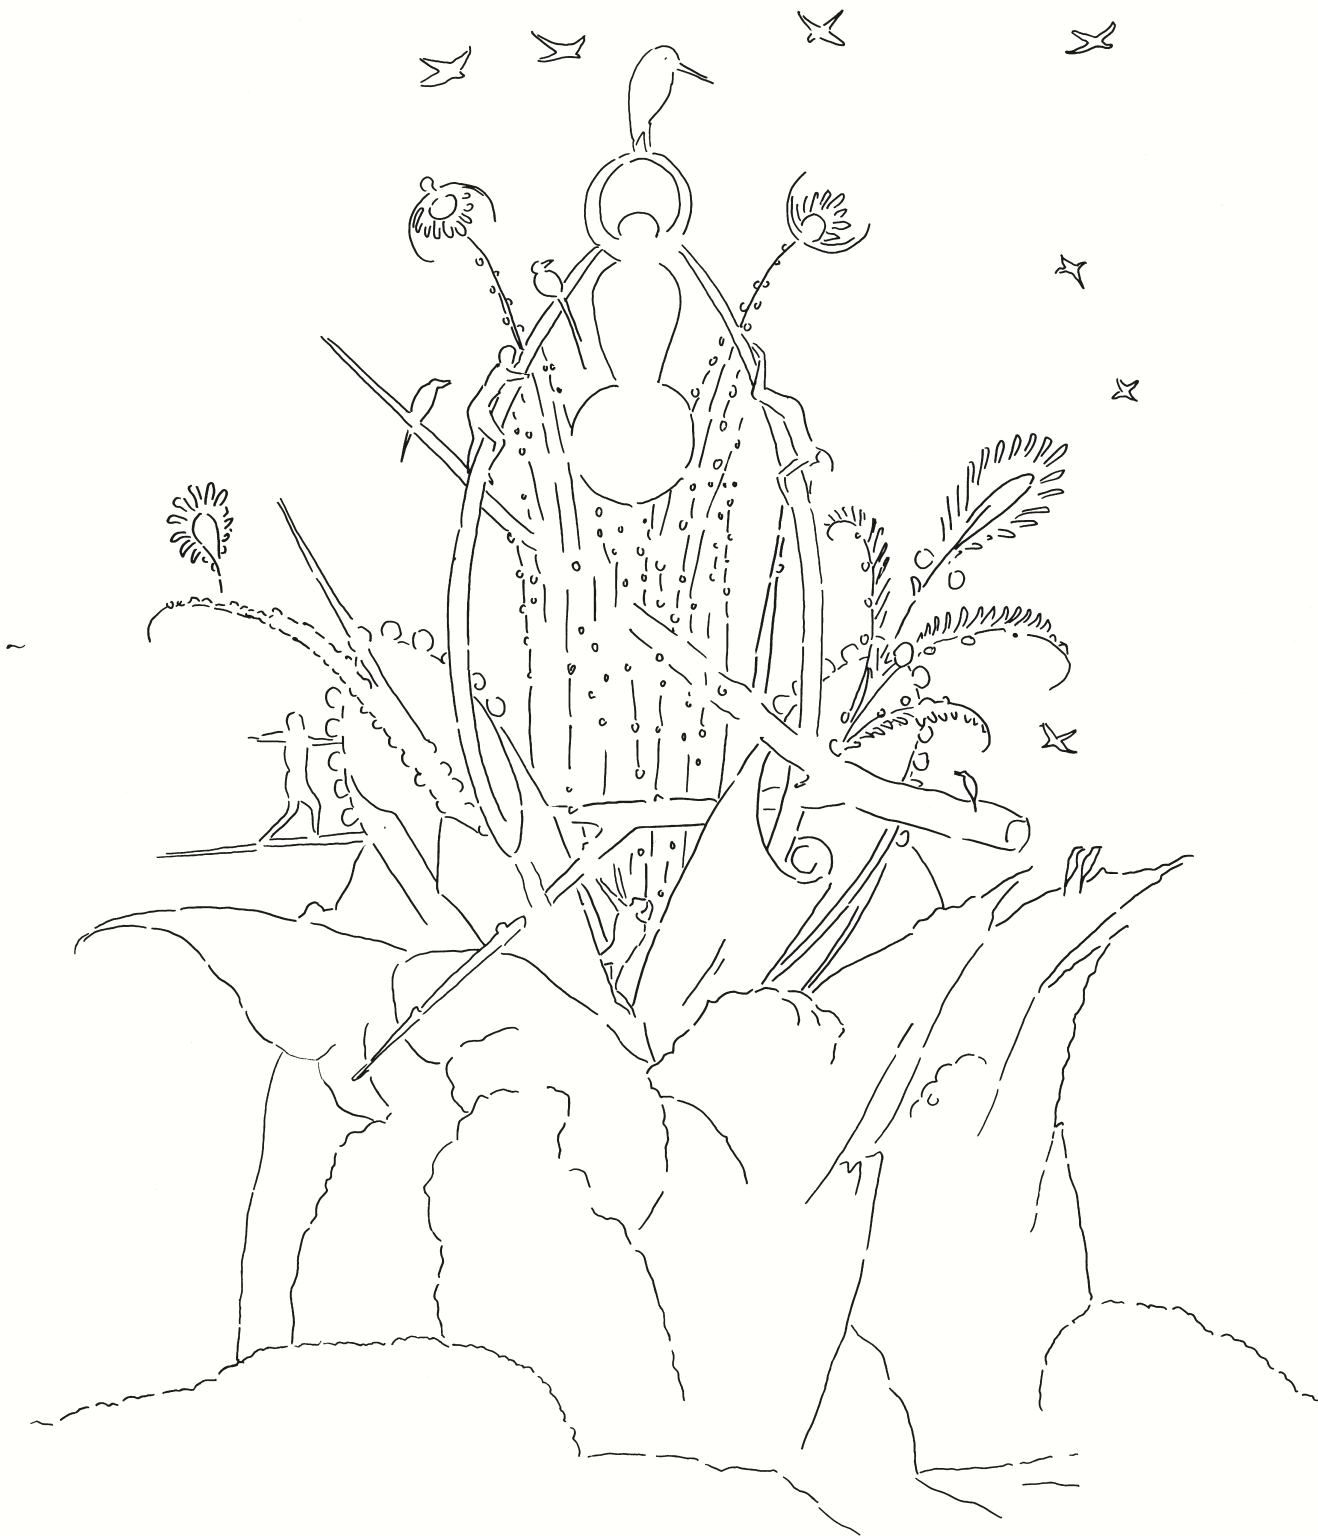

These are truly big birds! Are there any more?

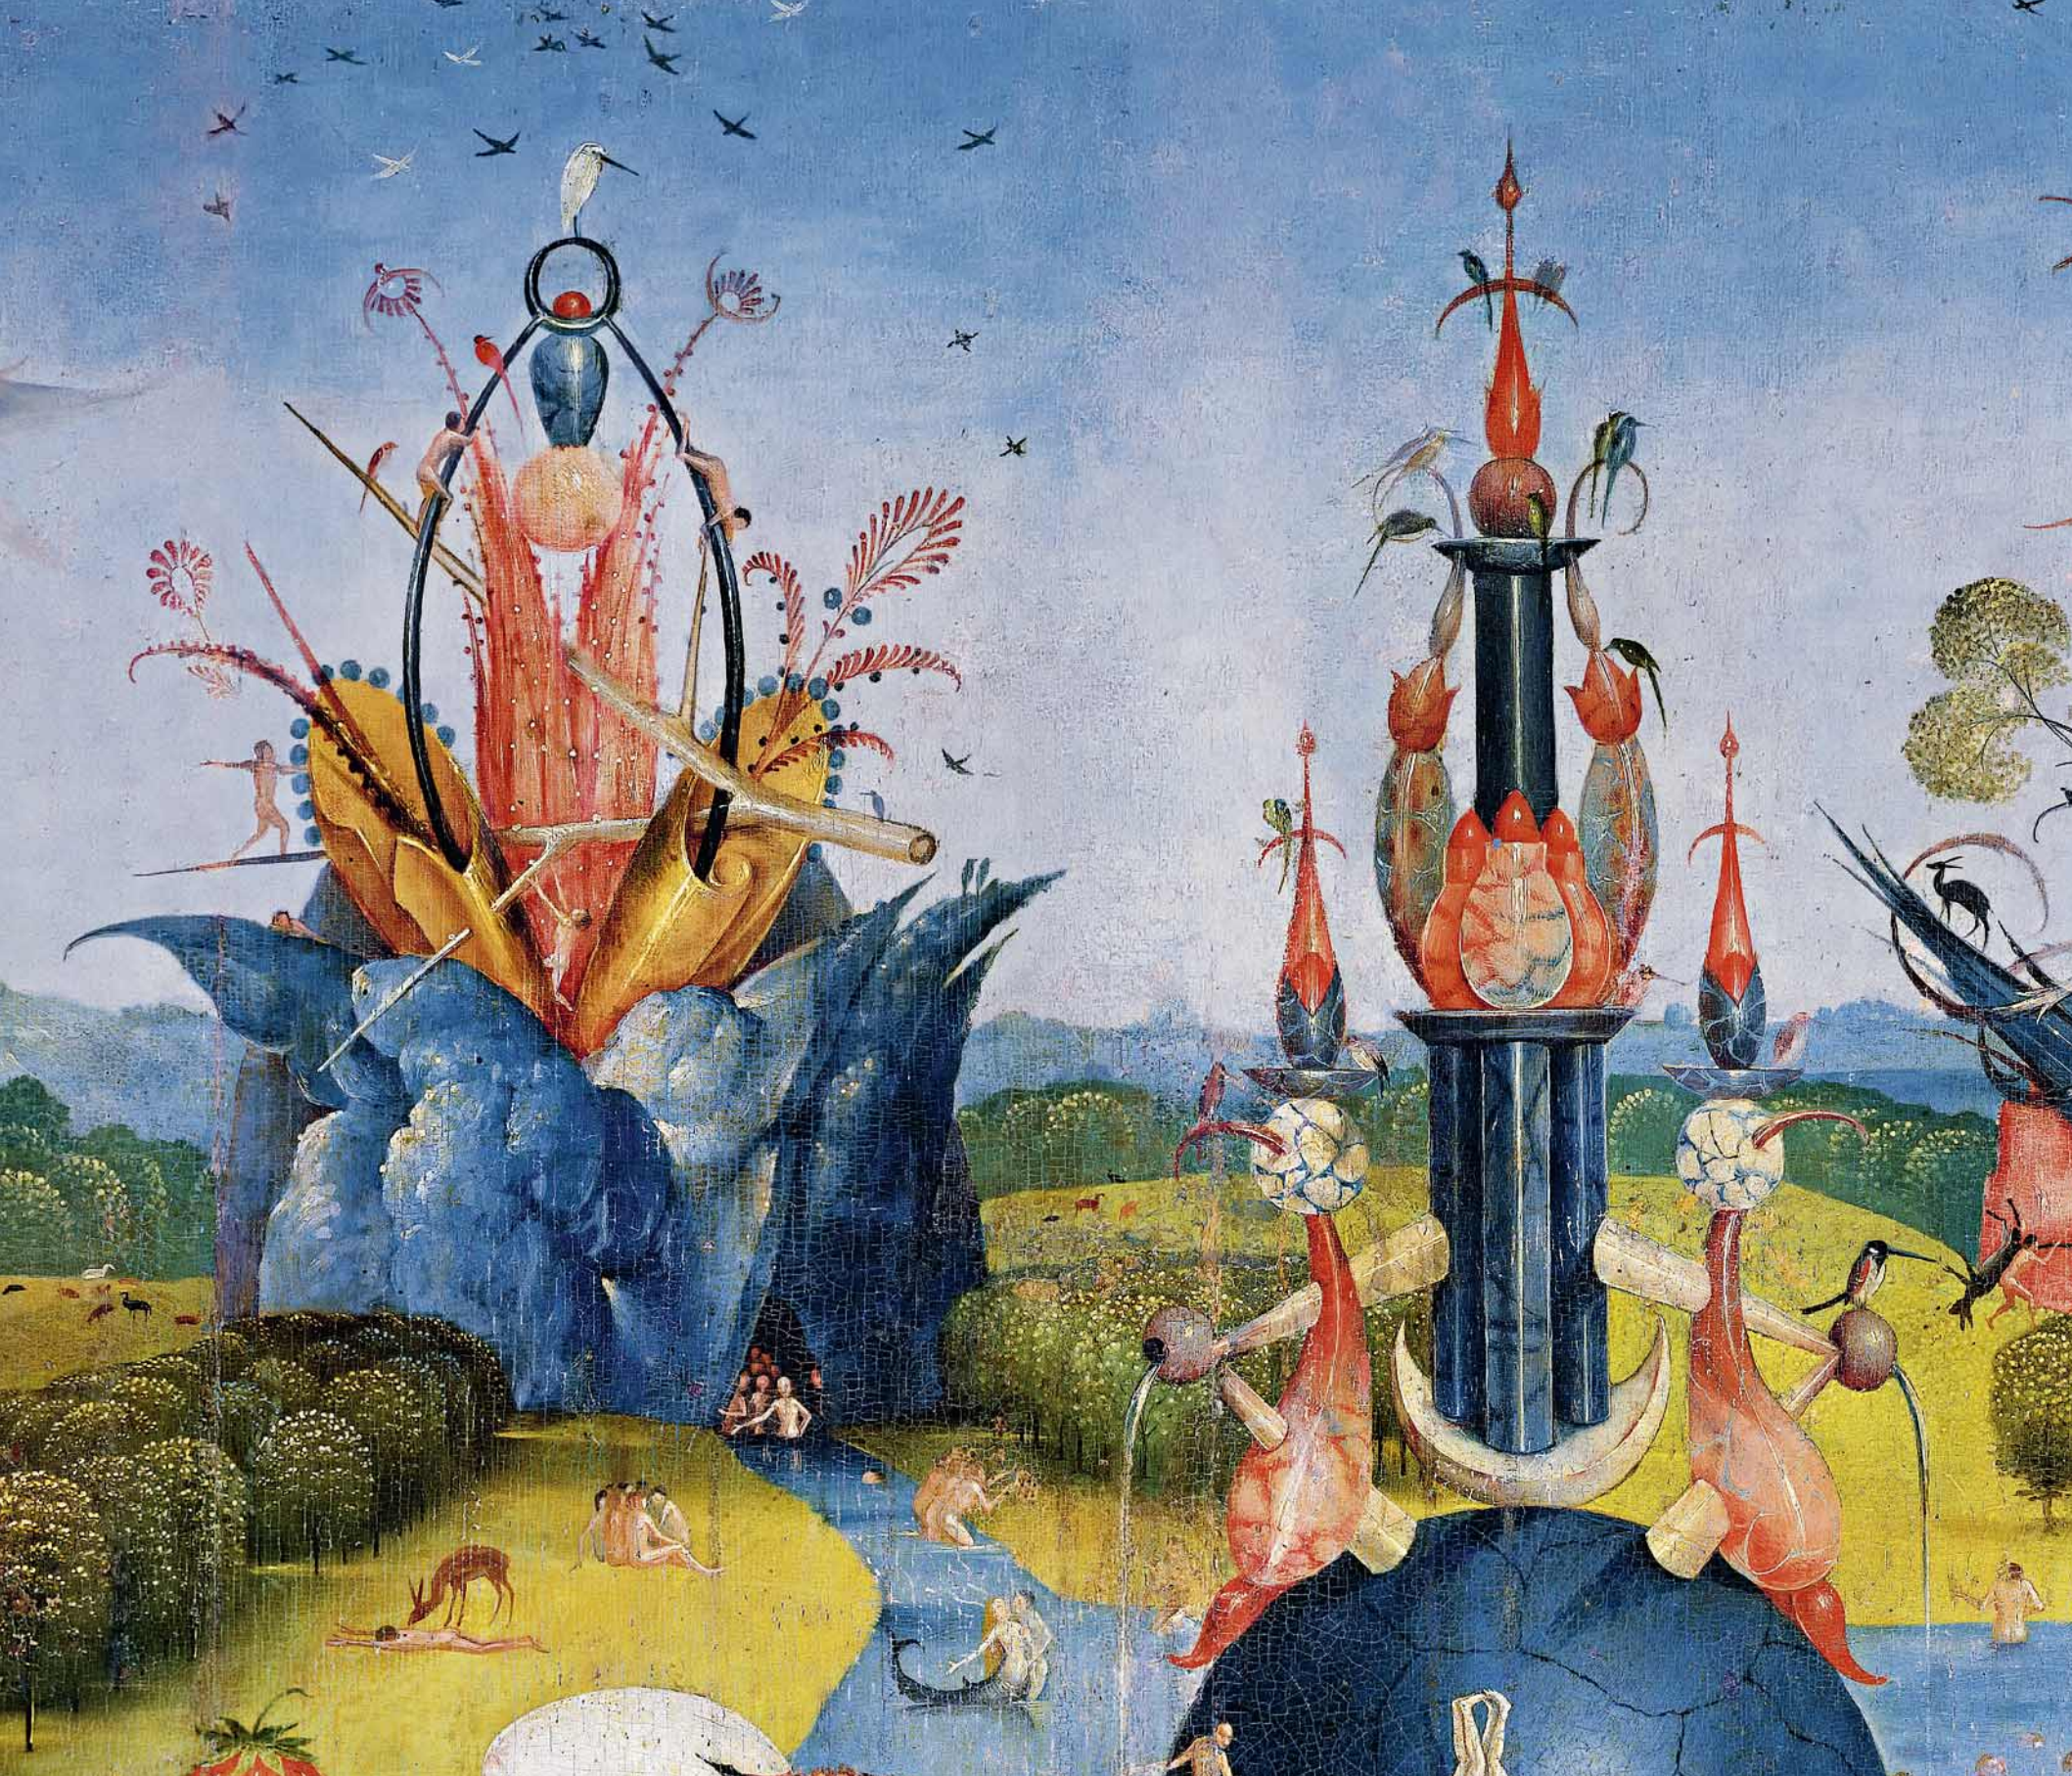

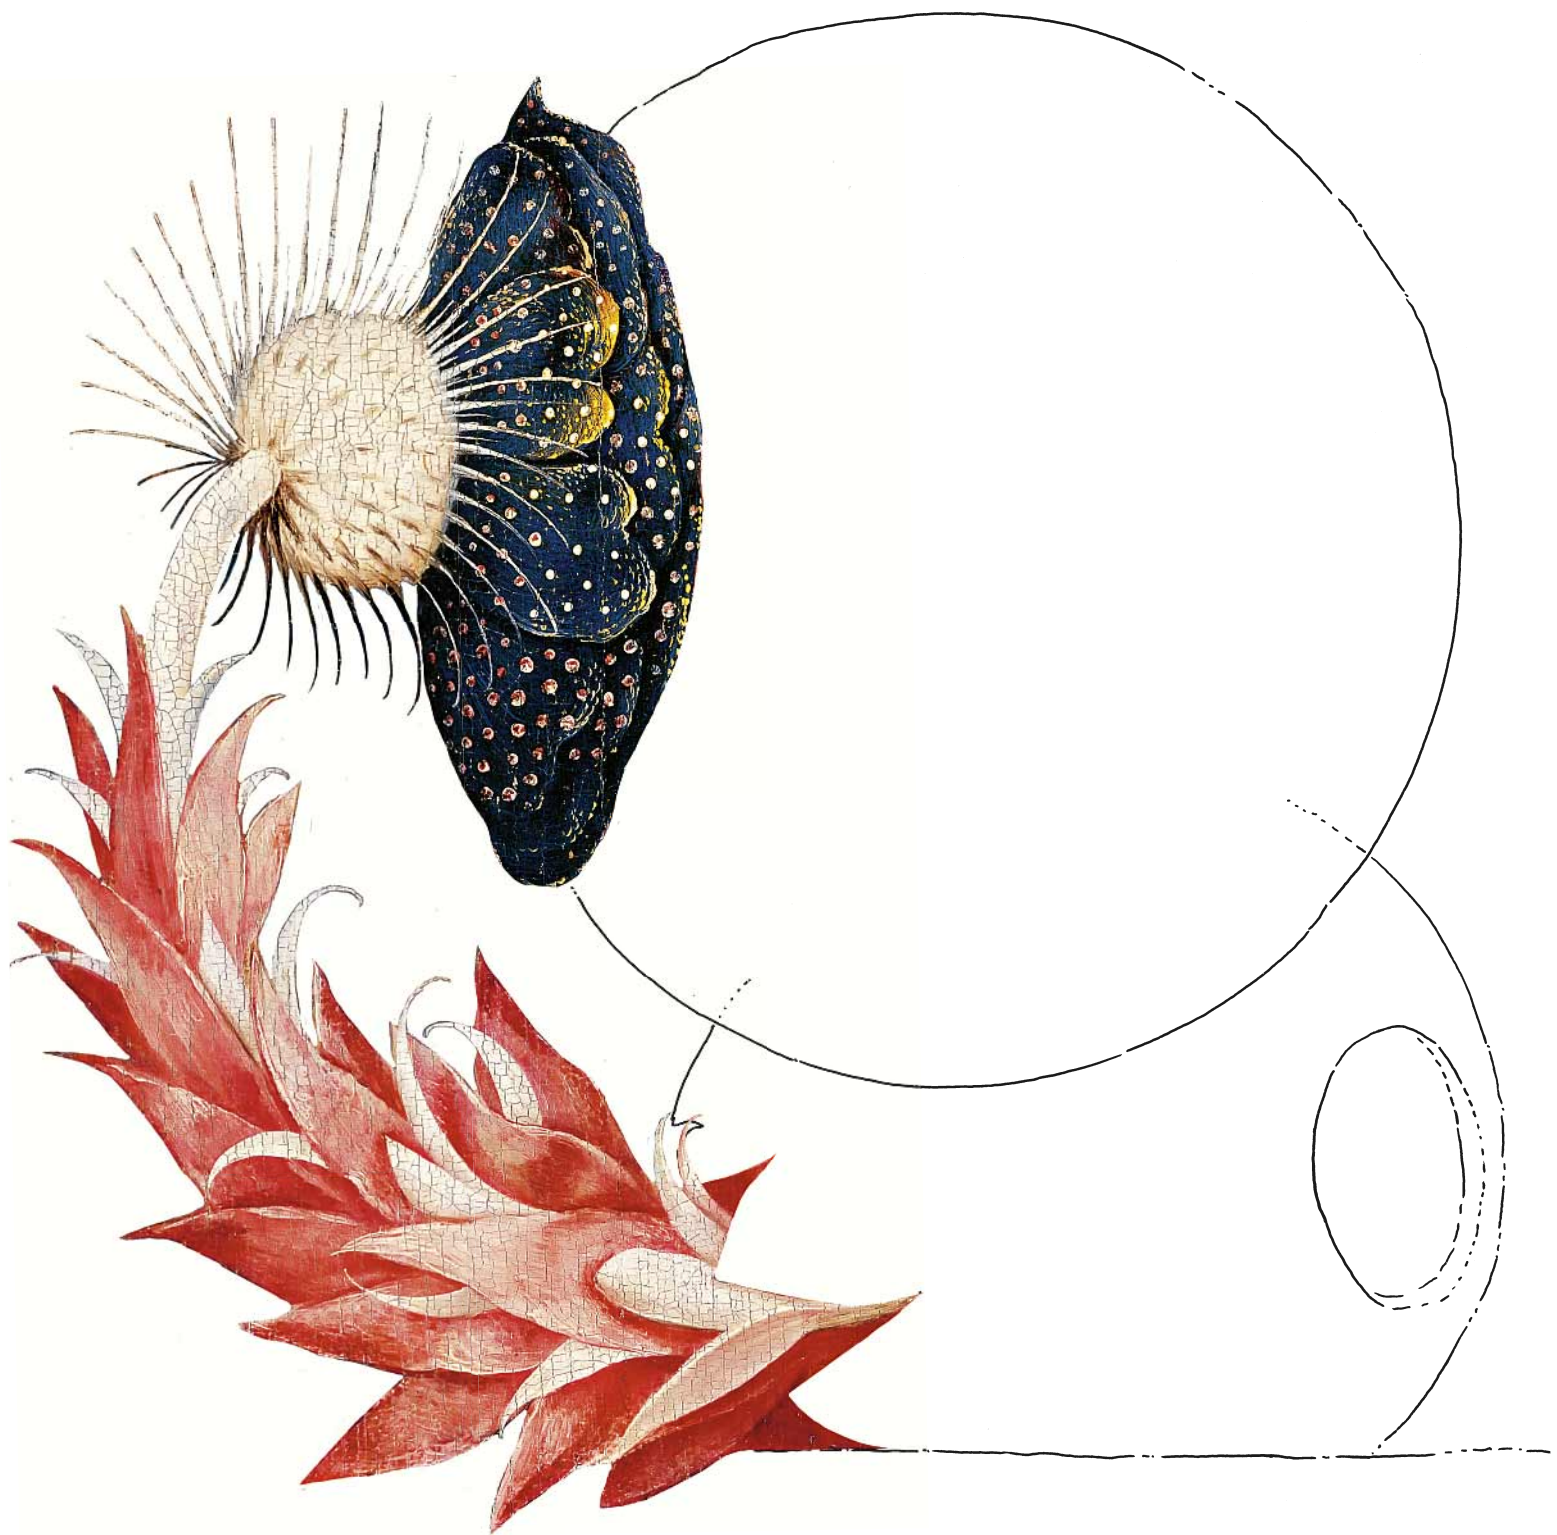

There's an owl hiding here. What do you think it caught sight of?

What color is your tower?

Hieronymus Bosch painted some odd things. Can you think of anything to add?

