The Impressionists

were a group of artists who lived about 130 years ago in Paris, the capital of France,
and invented a new kind of painting.

These artists no longer worked in their studios but took their paints, canvases, and easels outdoors to paint.

They painted the colorful life of Paris and the landscape around it and how these changed at different times of day and during different seasons.

They captured the impressions of the moment in pictures full of light and color:
the midday sun's golden spots of light falling through the foliage, the warm colors of the evening light on the houses,
the cool blue of snow-covered landscapes, the gray mood of rain, the shimmering colors of a dancer's clothing.

In this book you'll find pictures by the famous Impressionists that you can color in and draw on.

Use the colors you find most beautiful and paint the pictures any way you want!
